The company was found guilty in the lower court and sentenced to pay a fine of $50.

POSTMASTERS NEAR OGDEN REJOICE

Fourth class postmasters in the settlements near Ogden are exceedingly cheerful these days. Their little fourth class offices threaten to be better bread-and-butter getters than those for which the big Democrats are scrambling with so much fervor. The reason for the cheerfulness is the new regulation in the parcel post laws whereby packages up to 20 pounds in weight can be sent through the mails. Heavier packages demand more postage. Fourth class postmasters receive for salary the amount equal to the stamps cancelled in the office provided over by them. Hence the joy.

The mail carrier from Ogden valley brought to the local postoffice this morning packages from the postoffice at Eden with stamps that cancelled more than $10. Should the parcel post business of the Eden postmaster yesterday become the average, he is assured a salary well above $3000.

A. H. Smith, the man who carries the mail to and from Ogden valley, stated today that from present indications he will not be able to carry passengers as a side-line any longer. So heavy and numerous are the packages sent from the valley that his wagon is loaded with the heavy freight.

J. W. METCALF, FORMER CHIEF OF POLICE

After touring the greater part of the United States, during which time ten different railroads were used, John W. Metcalf, superintendent of the Shasta division of the Southern Pacific at Dunsmuir, arrived in Ogden this morning with a party of six officials who, after a stop in Ogden and in Salt Lake, will complete the last lap of their journey.

Mr. Metcalf is well known in Ogden. He was at one time a conductor, running out of Ogden and held the position of chief of police in this city. Many of his friends will meet him at the depot at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon when he returns from Salt Lake. He will be at the depot 40 minutes before his train leaves over the Southern Pacific.

Superintendent Metcalf and party are making one of the regular educational trips provided for by the Southern Pacific company. Besides the superintendent, the following are in party:

C. W. Marlyn, assistant superintendent Portland; G. A. Wester, division engineer, Dunsmuir; George Wild, assistant superintendent, Portland; W. J. McEnerney, master car repairer, Dunsmuir; E. L. King, trainmaster, Dunsmuir; and W. B. Kirkland, chief train dispatcher. The party travels in the luxurious private car, "Portland."

The party left Dunsmuir for Portland on the Southern Pacific. The Northern-Pacific was used between Portland and Seattle and the distance to St. Paul was made over the Canadian Pacific. The other roads traveled over were the Michigan Central, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Columbus & Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, and Oregon Short Line. The Southern Pacific will be used to return to Dunsmuir.

Supt. Metcalf informed Supt. G. O. Brophy that he found the roads to be in excellent condition. He was greatly interested in the Canadian Pacific and told the local superintendent that at Winnipeg, Canada, the Canadian Pacific company is spending four million dollars upon the yards.

HARBERTSON IS THROWN BY JORDAN

Chris Jordan, champion middleweight wrestler of the world, eliminated another candidate for his title tonight, when he was given the referee's decision over Jack Harbertson, after throwing the local man once in one hour and thirty-four minutes. The fall was obtained with a toe hold, which injured Harbertson so badly that he would have been an easy victim for the second fall had the crowd permitted him to continue the match. The tendons of his right knee were injured and he received a sprained ankle.

Harbertson earned the admiration of the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a wrestling exhibition in this city when he was carried onto the mat after the ten minutes' inter-

THOUGHT TO BE THE ARMORY HOLDUPS

Owen Read and W. F. Gooding, suspected by the police of having held up and robbed a transient of over $50, two weeks ago, at a point on Twenty-fourth street opposite the Armory, were sentenced this morning by Judge W. H. Reeder after they had pleaded guilty to the charge of drunkenness placed against them. Read was given 40 days and Gooding 25 days. The men had been under arrest several days. Until yesterday they were held on open charges.

Detective Charles Pincock stated this morning that, on the night that the transient came to the police station with a badly bruised head and told the story of being robbed by two men who attacked him opposite the Armory, after they had claimed to be his friends, informers had told the police that Read and Gooding were the two men that had accompanied the drunken fellow from a saloon. The detective said that the two had been observed to accompany the transient along Lincoln avenue. It was four days after the holdup before Gooding was found. Read was arrested on the following day.

When the detective stated in court this morning that the men were suspected of being the robbers, Judge Reeder questioned the trio. They admitted that they had been drinking with the stranger who they said was very generous and was buying drinks for all who entered the saloon. That they accompanied the man to Lincoln avenue and Twenty-fifth street on the night in question was also admitted, but they declared that they went with him no farther. According to their story they went to bed after they had left the drunken man at the corner.

The judge held that the actions of the two in associating with a drunken man with money were highly suspicious. He gave Read the heavier sentence because Read had been in similar trouble in Ogden before.

With each recurring toe hold Harbertson weakened from the punishment, but he displayed remarkable courage, especially in the fourth and last hold, refusing for fully one minute to comply with Jordan's repeated request to give the word to the referee. When he was finally forced to give in, Jordan helped Harbertson to his feet, and the Ogden man was carried from the ring to return ten minutes later ready to go on with the match, although deprived of the use of one leg.

In spite of Harbertson's defeat and the conditions under which he was defeated, there was no protest from the crowd against Jordan or his work. There was no time throughout the bout when the Greek could have been accused of unfair tactics. The clean work on the part of Jordan came as a surprise to the local fans, who anticipated some of the rough tactics which marked Yokel's defeat in Salt Lake three weeks ago.

In a statement after the match, Jordan said that he considered Harbertson a real wrestler and he predicted a good future for him.

Mike Yokel and Tom Long, who will meet in a match at Salt Lake Monday night, were introduced to the crowd, and each was given a hand.

INSPECTS WORK ON LEWISTON PIPE LINE

David R. Wheelwright, accompanied by his family and John Hall and family of North Ogden, returned last night from an auto trip to Franklin, Idaho, and Lewiston, Utah, where Mr. Wheelwright inspected work being done by Wheelwright Brothers Construction company of Ogden.

In speaking of the roads, Mr. Wheelwright said they were in good condition except between Willard and Brigham, where repairs are being made. North of Brigham and into Idaho the highways are in very good shape.

The work on the five-mile pipe line between Franklin and Lewiston, which the Wheelwright company is installing, is progressing satisfactorily. The shortage of laborers causes some delay. More men can be used upon the work, if they were to apply to the company.

With the big trencher, about a thousand feet a day of ditch is being made.

A twelve-inch steel and wooden pipe to be used where the pressure is the greatest.

On account of the trouble in getting material, it will probably be completed 1 before the pipe line is completed.

NEW STORE TO OPEN MONDAY

Wilford Bramwell announces the opening of Bramwell Book & Stationery store, at 2362 Washington avenue, on Monday.

The new store is fitted in excellent style and a large stock is displayed on the shelves and on Monday the public will find $15,000 in books and stationery most artistically arranged and displayed.

Wilford Bramwell, who is in charge, has represented nine of the largest stationery houses in the country during the time he has been out of the Utah Stationery company, and he re-enters business better equipped than ever to serve the public.

COL. NELSON TO SEE BATTLE GROUND

Colonel John V. Nelson, who took part in the battle of Chickamauga fifty years ago September 19 and 20, is looking forward with great pleasure to the reunion of the Grand Army at Chattanooga, beginning September 15, as that city is within a few miles of the scene of the great struggle, and the Colonel expects to once more go over the ground where, with the Wisconsin artillery he saw strenuous service.

One of the candidates for commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. is C. E. Adams who served with Colonel Nelson in Fifth Wisconsin battery, light artillery.

After the encampment, Mr. Nelson will go to Nashville to be present at a family reunion where five brothers and five sisters will greet each other. The family, long after the war, moved from Wisconsin to Tennessee, and many of the members of the family now make Nashville their home.

Colonel Nelson will leave Ogden, September 10, and he invites other veterans who desire to make the trip to get literature that he has relating to the journey.

CABLE TELLS OF HIS WIFE'S DEATH

M. Green, 2116 Monroe avenue, received a cable message from Rotterdam, Holland, this morning, announcing the sudden death of his wife.

Mr. Green came to Utah six months ago, preceding his family for the purpose of getting comfortably located before sending for his wife and three children. Last week he sent the money which was to bring the wife to Utah, and he thought the cablegram, as he opened it, bore the good news of the coming reunion, and as a result the shock he received was a severe one.

COUNTY SCHOOL OPENING IS SEPT. 20

Weber county schools will open for the fall term September 20. The date was made known following a meeting of the Weber county board of education this afternoon.

Superintendent W. N. Peterson announced to the board that his staff of teachers was practically completed and that by the opening day every school would be provided with its full quota of instructors.

The superintendent also reported to the board that the difference of opinion in regards to text books named for county schools had been satisfactorily settled at a meeting between himself and the text book commission in Salt Lake. The books will be ordered during the coming week.

MORAN DAY AT THE LAGOON RESORT

The P. J. Moran employees are making merry today at Lagoon. No men are at work on any of the jobs of the construction company, every employee celebrating at Lagoon with his friends.

The horses and wagons of the contractor in Ogden were sent to Salt Lake yesterday and took part in the big parade in that city this morning. In Ogden, the A. F. of M. band paraded the streets followed by banner carriers and a sign-decorated automobile, announcing to the citizens that the day is Moran day.

The Ogden band, consisting of 20 pieces, went to Lagoon this afternoon to render a concert.

HOUSE ENTERED AND $20 IS TAKEN

The home of Jacob Peterson, 168 Twentieth street, was burglarized last night and $12 in cash taken from the pockets of the owner while he slept. Entrance to the house was made through the back door after the latch had been pried off.

Mr. Peterson is quite deaf and he did not hear the intruders as they walked about the kitchen and removed the money from his vest. According to the police, a clue they have will lead to an arrest.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

One of the happiest little girls in the city yesterday was gay little Frances Pagett, who celebrated her seventh birthday anniversary, entertaining fifteen little girl friends at the home on Twenty-eighth street. Various games were carried out with great glee and merry laughter rang out throughout the afternoon.

Gifts in remembrance of the day delighted the little hostess. Among the many received being a handsome gold locket, beautifully engraved and set with diamonds in the form of a cross, from Grandma Reed, and gold chain from mamma, together with books, stationery, a wee silver vanity bag, gold pen with pearl handle, dainty pieces of China and many other articles that were equally pretty and appropriate gifts.

The dining table presented a charming scene with its decorations of pink and white astors and fall flowers, the birthday cake forming the centerpiece with its seven tiny pink candles in the daintiest pink rose holders, the ices and confections all carrying out the dainty color scheme and last, but not least, the circle of sweet, young faces vying with the flowers.

Mrs. Pagett was assisted in receiving and entertaining the little merry-makers by her mother, Mrs. G. C. Reed, Mrs. T. A. VanDyke, and Miss Maud Stone.

The guests were: Frances Pagett, Jennie Van Dyke, Dollie Ulrich, "Toodles," Jensen, Fay Karbstein, Mary McCormick, Lucile McCormick, Madeleine Toy, Roberta Collins, Mary Smith, Norene Hiddle, Donabelle Casey, Marcia Casey, Helen Frampton, June Frampton, Helen Sheehan, Dorothy Heenan, Lillian Sheehan.

WEIGHT IN PIANO PLACING The weight of music—not the weight of the piano—is what must be brought to bear upon a piano in pounding out a piece of music—a subject that few musicians ever considered.

The minimum pressure of the finger for one note on the piano is equal to 110 grammes. This experiment may be carried out by anyone. Take a handful of pennies and hold them in a column immediately over any key of the piano, and it will be found that between nine and twelve pennies are required to produce a sufficient weight for the note to sound. As three pennies are equal to one ounce, one ounce equal to twenty-eight grammes, this experiment confirms the above calculation.

The note, however, will vibrate but gently, and to be played "fortissimo" a pressure equal at times to 3000 grammes is required. Therefore, if in place of a cord we had a balance attached in front of each hammer, the blow given on the balance when a note is played "fortissimo" would be more than six pounds. Strange to say, we bring to bear almost as much force in playing one note as in striking a chord. In a pressure of 2000 grammes are required and four notes be struck together, the pressure for each note taken separately equals 500 to 600 grammes.

What this force represents in an entire piece of music is startling and suggestive. For instance, in Chopin's last study in C minor, there is a passage which takes two minutes and five seconds to play. The pressure brought to bear during this short lapse of time is equal to a grand total kilograms, and would be sufficient to raise three tons of coal. A good pianist can strike such an enormous number of notes in so brief a space that he can bring to bear a total pressure of something like three tons in two minutes.

In Chopin's "Funeral March" there is a passage which takes a minute and a half to perform on the piano, and yet it is only estimated at a weight of 384 kilograms. At this rate it will be seen that it would only require four or five minutes to move 1000 kilograms, or one ton. According to the two examples given, the total tonnage of one hour's playing varies from twelve to eighty-four tons, although selections from Wagner would possibly run it up much higher.

If it were only possible to harness this power and accumulate the store, the force a pianist, with comparative facility, brings to bear, we should have the principle of the keyboard applied to machinery, and even the weakest could, in a short time, tap out of the points of the fingers force enough to move the heaviest obstacles.—London Tit-Bits.

SOCIALISM IN ENGLAND

A day or two ago I noticed in a morning paper a brief report of the annual conference of the Fabian Society. The report was very brief—in the editor's opinion, evidently, the deliberations of the Fabian Society were of less public importance than the previous day's happenings in the Lambeth Police Court—but from it I was able to gather that all was not well with the Fabian Society, of which that social, political and economic movement which it did so much to initiate, and with which it has so long been identified.

The president of the conference, Mr. R. C. K. Ensor, a fairly well-known journalist, and until recently a member for a great popular constituency of the London City Council, appears to have remarked in his opening address "that the Labor party during the last twelve months had lost more than it had done during the previous five years, and he thought that the influence of persons who were Fabians had been thrown very often in the wrong scale."

In the subsequent discussion Mrs. Sidney Webb, the chief author of the Minority Report of the Royal Commission on the Poor Law, is reported to have said that the Fabians could not employ themselves better than by trying to get at some solution all along the line of the great business of the control of industry, and that it was a disgrace to the Socialists that when the whole question of insurance came up they knew nothing whatever about it, and that it was thanks to their deplorable ill-considered and muddled-headed act had found its way to the statute book.

It may be that there are actually more men and women who would call themselves Socialists in Great Britain today than there were five-and-twenty years ago, but what people call themselves is little to the point. What is quite certain is that there are fewer men and women in Great Britain today who believe in what the originators of the Socialist movement believed in, who aim at the ends they aimed at, who are inspired by the ideals they held, than there were, let us say, fifteen years ago.
